Weather
Mostly fair in the Livermore - Amador Valley through Saturday except for patchy fog late nights and mornings and variable high cloudiness. Little temperature change. Lows in the mid 30s. Highs in the upper 50s and 60s. Light winds. Livermore 34 and 62.

Two year spread on June ballot

Schools want 90 cent tax boost limit

PLEASANTON — The Pleasanton Joint School District board, believing the district to be in even a greater potential financial pinch than Amador, has called for a 90-cent tax revenue limit increase measure for the June ballot.

The 90-cent hike would be over a period of two years, the district levying a 45-cents per $100 assessed valuation tax the first year (1976-77) and a full 90-cents from the second year on.

According to Doug Rose, assistant superintendent for business, the additional funds are needed to balance the budget, provide a 2 per cent reserve of $132,086, and pay the Pleasanton district's part of the rental on warehouse space at Parks — an approximate sum of $10,000.

The present 1976-77 study budget, as worked up by Rose and director of fiscal services Virginia Gorski- shows an imbalance of $154,130...and no reserve. Pleasanton shares the rental cost on warehouse facilities at Parks with the Amador Valley Joint High School District. Total rental is approximately $20,000.

Up until this year, the districts rented the Parks storage sheds on a $1 a year basis but the government has since turned to a policy of putting such facilities on a per-square-foot-per-month paying basis.

The county counsel will prepare the resolution that will place the measure on the June ballot.

A day earlier, the Amador district directed staff to gather the necessary financial data and prepare a resolution for a 75-cents tax revenue limit increase measure for the June ballot. The 75-cents would carry over a period of three years, meaning the district could receive 25-cents (per $100 assessed valuation) the first year, 50-cents the second year, and the full 75-cents the third year.

The Amador and Pleasanton school boards will meet Tuesday and Wednesday, respectively, in regular session to formalize the ballot measures. Both meetings are scheduled for the District Educational Center, 123 Main St.

When the wording is finalized for the ballot, the prospect of two tax revenue measures on the same June ballot will mean that residents of Pleasanton, especially, will be faced with deciding whether to vote to increase their taxes by 70 cents (per $100 assessed valuation) the first year and an eventual $1.65.

The Amador district also takes in Dublin, which will be voting on a bond placed on the ballot by the Murray School District. Murray is seeking authorization to sell p1 million in bonds in order to complete a seventh-eighth grade school planned for the Dolan site in Silvergate. The Murray district also takes in a sizable portion of Pleasanton.

The study budget figure for 1976-77, for the Pleasanton district, is $6,475,287 and out of balance by the aforementioned $154,130.

Flareup in Murphy, Bates feud?

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Supervisor Tom Bates' attempt Tuesday to appoint an environmentalist to the county planning commission may touch off another feud between himself and valley supervisor John Murphy.

The political toe-stepping also mars traditional board protocol.

Bates nominated Robert C. Leyland, his environmental planning consultant and a Sierra Club member, to fill the post of Jim Zeno. Murphy quickly asked the Oakland supervisor to continue the nomination to next week's meeting.

Supervisors pass their nominations to county commissions to each other on the Thursday preceeding their Tuesday meeting. Any objections are raised before the nomination is made public.

Murphy says he did not get Leyland's resume until late Friday afternoon and that he immediately sent a request to Bates' office asking the supervisor to continue the nomination.

Bates says he did not get the note before the start of Tuesday's board meeting, and that in fact it was time-stamped across his desk while the meeting was in progress.

Neither has charged overt skulduggery, but the two have been at odds since Bates wrote the Alameda County Grand Jury requesting an investigation into the aborted purchase of 53 acres in Pleasanton for an East County Government site Murphy was a strong proponent of the purchase.

Murking below the politics and protocol of the nomination, however, is a board-wide dispute over appointments to the seven member planning commission.

Others need to file

Mercer, Jordan comply

PLEASANTON — Ken Mercer and Jim Jordan lead the field in receiving political contributions among city council candidates so far.

Jordan and Mercer were among five candidates who filed contribution statements by the first exoense reporting deadline Jan 22.

Candidates Robert Attebey and Gene Finch have not filed the required statements. Assistant City Attorney Harvey Levine said that technically they are in violation, but he needs to contact the candidates and see if they are in but he needs to contact the candidates and see if they are in willful violation of the law Finch was unavailable for comment yesterday, but Attebery told The Times he completely forgot about the deadline until the city attorney called him prior to the The Times' call He said he would have the form filed by the close of business yesterday.

The records show that $437 in cash and $337 in non-monetary contributions have been given to Mercer. He listed only one cash contributor, attorney John Corley who donated $100. Realtor Brad Hirst donated $107 worth of refreshments to a campaign party and Mercer donated $74 in refreshments for his own reception.

Some $337 from others are also listed in one lump sum. The law does not require candidates to report names of any donors who contribute less than $50.

Jordan had many contributors under $50 and listed them all Citizens Against Redevelopment donated $250, Joe Antonini, CARD's treasure'', personally donated an additional $50, Antonini's wife, Doris has donated a cumulative amount of $55 since an earlier reporting deadline, and Wallace Mayer, Sr., an accountant, has donated $50.

Donors giving $25 or less to Jordan include Chester Kallunki, Jack Fiorio, Wallace Mayer, Jr., Elaine Koopman, Corday Johnson, Donald Savery, Cavestri's Electric, William Hall, Donald McKenzie, Callie Heinbaugh, Marilyn Holzer, James Frye, Bert Pease, Earl Wells, Phil Cranford, Chuck Seymour, Erik Ward, Mike Hemp, Ken Mason. Thurman Caudill, C. L. Johnson, and Ameilia E. Wilcox.

Frank Brandes has received $236 in donations, none over $50 and no specific contributors are listed Councilman Roger McLain has received , $60, divided equally among six contributors: Loren Anderson, William Martens, Donald Paukert, Ward Miller, David Shepherd, and Ralph Gordner.

Councilman William Herlihy reported no contributions and no expenses.

Expenses reported by other candidates were Mercer, $432; Jordan, $508; Brandes, $262; and McLain, no expenses reported Next deadline for filing contributions and expensds is Feb. 19.

Wheat fields abound

Poster makes drawing

PLEASANTON — When Amador Valley High senior Jim McCabe went searching through history books and asked local residents about the area's topography of yesteryear, he probably never dreamed that a resultant drawing would end up being displayed on Main Street and the subject of a raffle.

Well, McCabe's quill pen and ink rendering of the wheat fields that dominated the countryside not only is on display at Warren Wade's on Main Street, but is being raffled off after winning a top prize in the Pleasanton Bicentennial's poster contest.

Raffle tickets for the quill pen and ink drawing being raffled off by the Pleasanton Bicentennial Festival Committee will be available this Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the Alpha Beta shopping center and Warren Wade's on Main Street. Tickets are 50 cents each or three for $1. The drawing will be held on Feb. 20. Winner need not be present to win.

Proceeds from the raffle will go to further the education of the young artist, and to the 1976 Fair parade which will be conducted under the auspices of the Pleasanton Bicentennial Festival Committee.

McCabe said he decided on the quill pen and ink medium because he feels most comfortable with it. His art training has consisted of just a half-year during his junior year at Amador. The winning poster contest entry took him about two hours to complete.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Frances D. McCabe of 4826 Saginaw Circle, Jim plans going into either veterinary medicine or ranch management when he enters Kansas State University next fall.

In order to accomplish this, he will have to take a two-year course in pre-veterinary medicine.

McCabe has a brother, Frances, at Kansas State who is in the school of architecture.

Before moving to Pleasanton, the family lived in Leavenworth, Kansas.

Also available Saturday, in addition to tickets for the drawing, will be copies of the winning posters in the poster contest held last fall in Pleasanton's schools. Posters are 50 cents each. Samples of the posters and a picture of the sketch will be shown where tickets and posters are being sold.

Firemen lie low

PLEASANTON — "There is a lot of citizen intereest and a lot will happen," Fireman Bill Barry predicted about the police and fire department reorganization Tuesday.

The firemen, opposed to the reorganization enacted 5-0 Monday night by the city council, are lying low right now, said Barry.

"We won't make any rash moves. We'll think about it a few days. But judging by some of the phone calls I got today, if we don't do something, the citizens will," said Barry.

Barry told The Times a few days ago that the firemen were ready to carry petitions if the city council voted against their position Monday. Despite the 5-0 vote, the firemen have decided not to carry petitions, though the citizens who called him seemed to be thinking in that direction, said the firefighters union local president.

Here's how to make a hologram

Wondering just how a hologram is made?

In oversimplified terms, here's the process:

•A computer uses scientific data to make a 45-second, 1,080-frame movie of the object.

•The computer movie on ordinary 35mm film is run one frame at a time through a machine.

•A laser beam is sent through the movie frame and through a lens which elongates it to about 24" by 1/22 of an inch.

•The process is repeated 1,080 times, yielding three images per degree of rotation (360 degrees equals one full rotation.)

•When fully exposed, the strip of film is developed. When bent into a cylindrical shape and placed over a light source, the film refracts light in what appears to be a three-dimensional image.

Ghosts and apparitions — at the Lab?

LIVERMORE — The ghostly form in glowing rainbow shades rotates slowly in space.

It's so close, and yet...where is it? ..you've just moved your hand through the middle of - the spectre without disturbing its eerie motion.

Then they shut off the lamp and the show's over. All that's left is a metal lamp base and a see-through plastic shade No projectors. No mirrors. No tricks.

You've just seen the latest thing in holograms, those three-dimensional pictures on a two - dimensional surface.

You can walk around a hologram, or watch one rotate past you, and feel as if you're looking into and around a three-dimensional object which is suspended out there a few feet away.

Yet what you're actually seeing is hundreds of hair-thin laser photographs of the same object photographed at slightly different angles, creating the illusion of depth.

Although the technology behind holograms is highly sophisticated, the showmanship involved in an invention so dazzling is capturing the imagination of scientists at Lawrence Livermore Lab, who are beginning to use holograms in their work.

Dr. Gordon Smith, a prominent crystallographer, explains: "All our information about the world is in three dimensions. Yet, when we want to present the information, we have to put 3-D data into a 2-D medium (such as diagrams on paper) to explain it."

Last week, Smith electrified 200 of the nation's top crystall graphers at a convention in North Carolina, by showing them LLL's holograms of a calcite crystal structure and a tetraglycine molecule.

The paper he read, explaining how holograms can be used in that specialty, was authored by Dr. Donald Vickers of the Lab's computer graphics department.

Smith, along with Lab programmer Steve Levine and hologram manufacturer Lloyd Cross, co-authored the paper.

The technique of "integral light" holograms is so new that the demonstration equipment Smith took to North Carolina consisted of a wobbly makeshift lamp and a patched-together strip of lucite for the shade. These were snugly packed into a wooden case handmade by programmer Levine. The precious cargo was checked onto the plane like any ordinary suitcase, and not even inspected to see if it was a bomb.

"The Model T," Smith lovingly calls their unrefined equipment. He predicts it won't be long before Multiplex Co. of San Francisco, the "hippie" group who hold the exclusive patent on holograms, will have a multimillion-dollar business with franchises all over the world.

Right now, Multiplex operates with handmade lasers, lenses and other equipment in a converted bakery building on Shotwell Street, San Francisco, according to Vickers, who has gotten to know them through his Lab work.

Multiplex will make a hologram of anyone or anything. Their specialty is 3-D portraits of people, with a 120-degree portrait costing $100. The 360-degree in-the-round holograms of molecules commisrioned by LLL cost $250 apiece.

"Integral light" holograms use an ordinary light bulb. That's a breakthrough from the laser light that was required just a few years ago, and it means the cumbersome laser-producing equipment can be eliminated in favor of a table lamp.

Creative scientists like Vickers and Smith can see endless possibilities for the startling invention: living-room decorations, amusement-park gimmicks, teaching models.

"If I had order forms at the convention, I could have sold 30 of them on the spot," Smith reports.

"The audience just went wild."

Five arrested after Wednesday night brawl

LIVERMORE — Five truck drivers are being held on $5,000 bail each after a brawl in front of The Carriage night club on South Livermore Avenue Wednesday night.

Jimmie Lee Hutchings of Pine Street was reported in good condition after being kicked in the face with a boot during the struggle.

According to reports, the five truckers met in Tracy and drove to The Carriage for drinks and dancing. As they were leaving, Hutchings drove up and dropped Diana Hutchings off near the door.

After one of the five men said something to Diana, angry words were exchanged between the men and Hutchings. A fight broke out in which Hutchings was allegedly pulled from his car and beaten.

The truckers then got in an orange VW to leave but were pursued by Hutchings on foot, who kicked at the departing car's windows. Livermore police arrested the men a few minutes later and booked them for investigation of felonious assault with a deadly weapon.

Arrested were: Kurt Douglas Thompson of Lodi; Mark Steven Revels and Darrell Eugene Revels of North Carolina; and Noah Ard and Vernon Rorers, both of South Carolina.

Suspected amphetamine tablets found on hitchhiker

LIVERMORE — A 15-year-old girl reported as a runaway apparently tried to rid herself of 62 amphetamine tablets while seated in the back of a patrol car Wednesday night.

Livermore police saw the girl hitchhiking and detained her while an identification check was run. While one officer was questioning a nearby hitchhiker for clues to the girl's possible destination, another officer saw the girl attempt to push tablets under the car's rear seat cushion. She was transferred to juvenile hall pending notification of her parents.

Burglars hit Elm Street residence

LIVERMORE — Jewelry and old coins were the targets of burglars who broke into Linda Lucille Peifer's Elm Street residence Wednesday. Thieves entered a bathroom window and stole eight old silver dollars, a watch, assorted macrame pieces, a necklace and several earrings. There was no report of a cost estimate on the loss.

Guns taken from El Rancho Drive home

LIVERMORE — Burglars pried open a sliding glass screen and stole three shotguns and a rifle worth $530 from Peter Johnnie Royval's El Rancho Drive residence Wednesday.

Police found a screwdriver apparently used to pry the door open and are checking it for prints. The house was ransacked but a cigar box containing $3 in change and some jewelry was the only other item reported missing.

Shoplifter steals radio from Radio Shack

LIVERMORE — A citizens band radio worth $370 was taken from the Radio Shack store on First Street during regular business hours Monday.

Store Manager Fred Mahler told police that the thief removed the unit from its mounting bracket and walked out of the store, radio in hand. There are no suspects

Rings and coins missing from Ruth Way home

LIVERMORE — More than $200 in jewelry, coins and cash were taken from Irene Boyens Ruth Way home sometime Monday.

Four rings, five silver dollars and $40 cash were taken by thieves who entered a rear bedroom window A neighbor told police she saw two men near the apartment earlier and furnished descriptions of the pair.

Attempted burglary of Jiffy Foods fails

LIVERMORE — Someone apparently attempting to burglarize the Jiffy Foods store on East Avenue threw a 55-gallon garbage can through a 4' x 5' plate glass window but fled when the alarm sounded, police said yesterday.

Police arrived but found no suspects or evidence that entrance to the store had been made. There was no reported loss except for replacement costs of the window.

Murphy vs. Bates

two supervisors representing an unincorporated area has been given two appointments. The other three supervisors got one each.

Redistricting has altered the "who's who" of the unincorporated areas, however, and now supervisors Joseph Bort, Charles Santana and Murphy each claims two appointments.

That, of course, leaves one appointment to be shared between Bates and board chairman Fred Cooper of Alameda.

But Bort and Santana each has claimed the other is entitled to only one appointee.

Still with us? Here's the road map.

Should the three agree on two appointments each, Cooper may charge Bates with a "lame duck" appointment since the Oakland supervisor has announced his candidacy for State Assemblyman Ken Meade's post.

Zeno, however, was also a lame duck appointment.

Bates has yet to make an appointment to the planning commission, and says he wants an environmentalist to be seated. The commission sometimes is characterized as "pro-growth."

"It would be the first environmentalist appointment in the county's history," he believes.

Says Murphy of Leyland's nomination: "I don't like the idea. We're going to go into appointments in depth later."

Leyland has appeared before the board before on behalf of environmentalist causes, Murphy continued, and "seems to be someone who's made up his mind in advance. I've never seen him pro anything."

Leyland's credentials are lengthy. A bachelor's degree in business administration from the University of Puerto Rico — he's fluent in Spanish — and an M.A. in progress in Georgraphy at Cal State Hayward He's 33-years-old and expects his degree in September.

In 1974-75 he served as an Administrative Aid in the Alameda County Housing Authority; from 1968-71 as a casualty claims adjuster with Allstate Insurance Co., and before that an insurance adjuster for Crawford and Company of Philadelphia.

He's a member of the Association of American Geographers, Association of Environmental Professionals, the Wilderness Society and the Piedmont Avenue Neighborhood Improvement League.

His list of references runs 21 deep and includes attorneys, a city councilman, an AC Transit Director, a resident naturalist at the Sunol Regional Wilderness, and sundry environmentalists from the Oholine Audobon Society and the East Bay Conservation Subcommittee to the Sierra Club.

Valley BART buses assured

SAN RAMON — San Francisco BART Director Elmer Cooper ventured into formerly unfriendly turf Wednesday night to explain the board's position on feeder bus service to the hinterlands of Alameda and Contra Costa Counties.

The newly elected board president, currently under investigation by the Alameda County Grand Jury for possible misuse of his expense account, faced some two dozen once self-dubbed "Lepers of BART" to assure them of continued feeder bus service to their areas.

"The destiny of these buses is part of the destiny of BART," he emphasized, "because the buses are part of BART."

Officials from the valley and eastern Contra Costa County peppered the board president for 45 minutes to get his uniquivocal assurance that buses would run concurrently with rail service.

"The buses are going to run if the trains run," Cooper said.

The "lepers" were concerned over a resolution passed by the board last October that cuts off bus service after June 30, "unless sufficient funds for 1976-77 are secured."

It also ordered general manager Frank Herringer to keep feeder bus service within the $2 million budgeted. Any projected overexpenditure would mean a cut back in bus service.

"Buses are a part of BART," Cooper answered, "and part of the legislation" the board wants passed by the State.

"If there's no money to continue on with the trains, there's no money to continue buses."

In return for his assurances and the promise of a board resolution to that effect, the councilpersons, mayors and city managers pledged to support legislation to underwrite operating costs for the financially plagued district.

They once threatened to oppose such legislation without guarantees of continued busing.

Herringer labeled himself the "culprit" in deliberations leading up to the October vote.

When he first took over the district he noted the $2 million "loss" for feeder bus service and commented frankly, "I didn't even know where Danville or Alamo were."

Now, however, he "realize(s) the bus system is a part of the regional system."

BART Directors Nello Bianco and John Glenn, two of Livermore Director's Robert Allen's strongest supporters on the board, offered their assurances the system was one, integrated effort.

A decrease in funds would result in an "across - the - board" decrease in services, Bianco said, for both rail and bus service. Cooper and Glenn concurred.

Bus service, Herringer added, "would not be cut off to get a couple of weeks of rail service to the end of June."

Cooper's venture into the valley underlines the almost ecumenical emphasis the new president appears to be bringing to the board.

When elected to the presidency he declared an end to provincialism and squabbling that has divided urban and suburban sections of the nine member board.

When referred to as the "San Francisco director" after the meeting, he broke in to say, "I'm not the 'San Francisco' director. I'm a BART director and I was elected by the people of San Francisco."

He was blunt Wednesday night in his lobbying efforts with the civic officials, arguing that their support is needed for passage of any legislation on behalf of BART.

"There are two pieces of legislation," he said: Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post's recommendations to continue the half-cent sales tax, increase fares and stop night service, and BART's as yet to be made formal request for a permanent extension of the sales tax.

Both include allocations for bus service, according to Herringer and Cooper.

"We're asking for legislation for everything we're doing now," said Cooper.

The four directors and their general manager agreed any State support for legislation would be hard to garner. "Some of the greatest support comes from outside the BART district," added Cooper.

All of them asked for active lobbying by the communities for passage of the legislation. In return they will support a BART board resolution guaranteeing continued feeder buses.

Even Cooper said he saw no objection to the proposal, "on the face of it."

It remains to be seen how the hinterlands would be treated if the sales tax were made permanent, however.

Pleasanton Assemblyman Floyd Mori and Walnut Creek State Senator John Nejedly have co-sponsored a measure to guarantee feeder bus service to the outlying areas of their two counties. The measure would require continued feeder bus service to the valley and eastern Contra Costa County until rail lines and facilities are operating in the areas.

First the good news. . .

School district airs EIR

Final of two parts on the Environmental Impact Report on Livermore's $10 million school building program.

LIVERMORE — The $10 million school construction project voters approved last March will put a neighborhood school within walking distance of most children/ improve the appearance of barren school sites, and cut down on bus and car traffic.

That's the bright side of a project that will put permanent buildings at 11 different locations in town, according to a draft of the environmental impact report just released by Environmental Science Associates, Inc. of Foster City.

The worst problem, says the report, is dust and noise during construction of the new and remodeled buildings. There will also be a permanent rise in noise in the vicinity of Ladd Avenue at times. The bus yard is being moved there and early-morning bus warmups could create an 80-decibel racket.

Livermore residents are invited to a special hearing on the impact report at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 17 at the administration building, Las Positas Boulevard at Murrieta. The hearing will be part of the regular school board meeting which begins at 7:30 p.m.

Anyone who is wondering what the building program will do in his own neighborhood may peruse a copy of te 43-page, brown-covered EIR at the city library (1000 South Livermore Ave.) or at the school headquarters (Las Positas at Murrieta).

Residents may present their views either by sending a letter to the school board at 685 Las Positas Blvd. or by presenting testimony at the open meeting.

The report is divided into seven sections, including: project description; physical and biological environment; social and economic environment; impact overview; alternatives; list of persons consulted; bibliography.

The project includes construction of five permanent elementary school buildings at various spots; making major additions to East Avenue and Junction Avenue Intermediate Schools; Livermore and Granada highs; building a 20-bus yard on Ladd Avenue; and building an office facility and warehouse on the 40-acre spread owned by the school district along Las Positas Boulevard at Murrieta.

The report notes that most of the work will take place on rather poor soil that is not much use for anything else, except for Arroyo Seco School on Irene Way, which sits on prime agricultural soil.

As far as earthquakes are concerned, Rancho Las Positas School on Tanager Road, Sunset East School on Frankfurt Way and Granada High on Wall Street all lie on or near faults.

All Livermore schools are within 10 miles of the Calaveras fault zone, 15 miles east of the active Hayward zone and 30 miles east of the active San Andreas zone.

"All of the sites will be subject to severe shaking in the event of a major earthquake occurring on the nearby portions of any of these fault zones," the report warns.

It adds, no buildings will be placed directly on a fault.

The EIR has good things to say about the effect the building program will have on plant life. The report says most of the sites are now covered with non-native weeds which will be replaced by turf and shrubs. A stand of blue gum eucalyptus at Arroyo Seco, and two old-growth valley oak trees and several walnut trees at Arroyo Mocho, will be preserved.

Plans to use native trees and shrubs in landscaping will provide a better habitat than before for the birds which frequent the school areas, including western meadow lark, killdeer, song sparrow, white-crowned sparrow, house finch and linnet.

The school district plans "minimal use" of pesticides and herbicides, hoping to encourage the natural ecology of the area.

The report says neighbors in the construction areas will have to put up with as much as a year of dusty air, especially in summer, although the district will probably keep it to a minimum by wetting down the dirt.

Over the long haul, air quality in the Valley should be improved because cars and buses won't have so far to travel and because Sunset School will be virtually pollution-free, thanks to a solar energy heating and cooling system.

The five Environmental Associates staff members who prepared Livermore Unified School District's EIR consulted 11 men involved in the building program, including: Rudy D'Ambra, the district's director of facilities management; Dewey Hudson, transportation supervisor; George Musso, city planning director; Richard Dantro, city traffic engineer; David Carpenter, county building inspector; representatives of the three architectural firms working on the program; a geological and soils engineering firm from Palo Alto; and officials from the state Department of Water Resources and Office of Emergency Services.

Chabot college

Mission tour scheduled

LIVERMORE — A two-day bus tour of three of California's most interesting old missions will be sponsored by the Chabot College Valley campus on Feb. 28-29.

Entitled "Missionlands Tour," the class will take a close-up look at the history of the missions and the men who built them and worshipped there. Built during the Spanish period of California history, the missions stand as reminders to the dedicated Franciscans who founded them and the Indians whose souls they tried to save.

The 200-year-old structures remain as classic examples of Spanish-influenced design and even today inspire present-day architects. The Valley campus is a good example of a modern-day interpretation of the Spanish design.

Chabot history instructor Joe Downs will lead the tour and provide a continuous narrative into the romantic history surrounding each mission.

Students will leave the Chabot Valley campus by bus at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday, Feb. 28. The morning will be spent visiting historic Mission San Juan Bautista, founded in 1797 by Father Junipero Serra.

The tour will travel to Mission San Antonio de Padua. Students will enjoy a brown bag lunch feast in front of the 204-year-old church at that time.

The group will stay at the Casa Munras Motel in Monterey around 5 p.m. Saturday and spend the night. Departing the motel at 9:30 a.m. Sunday, students will travel to Mission San Carlos in Carmel, and be allowed time for church attendance and shopping in Carmel.

After spending the day in Carmel, students will bus back to the Valley campus around 5 p.m.

Tour costs range from $38.50 to $46.50 per student and include bus transportation, motel accommodations, and coffee and rolls Saturday morning. All other expenses must be borne by the student.

No college credit is offered for the tour. Registration must be made before Friday, Feb. 20.

For more information. contact the Valley campus at 455-5300.

ARE CONCRETE SWIMMING POOLS OBSOLETE?
Judge for yourself!
This is a SAN JUAN, fiberglass, one piece swimming pool being lowered into the prepared ground! A beautiful, full-sized pool with a permanently smooth, non-abrasive finish that algae simply cannot invade! Only one of the reasons why up to 90% of old fashioned cement pools' maintenance effort and expense can be eliminated.
The SAN JUAN POOL comes in several sizes (shown here, 16 by 34 feet); equipped as you wish and priced demonstrably fairer than a plaster/concrete pool. It's longer lasting, too, because fiberglass, 12 times stronger than concrete, is forever. Colorful, it never needs painting! Moulded in the plant in one piece, in one incredible process, the SAN JUAN has a structural, yet flexible strength that has withstood four major earthquakes. Ask about our exclusive 25 year pool guarantee! Much faster, easier to install . . . before investing in any pool get the complete story, including color photos of local installations. Get the concrete pool story, too . . . it only makes ours better!
P.S. Off-season, winter prices now in effect! Save importantly.

Oakland Diocese sets institute

CONCORD — The diocesan Religious Education Institute offers a unique approach to the bicentennial year at the semi-annual all-day session at Carondelet High School on Saturday.

The keynote talk of Brother Carl FSC and the workshops will underscore the need for American Catholics to look ahead to "New Glory" as they remember "Old Glory."

The 9 a.m. Mass will be followed by a talk by Brother Carl on "Jerusalem, Rome and Disneyland?" In his inimitable way he will explore the theology of freedom, nationalism and Catholicism as seen from the perspective of the American religious experience.

The professor of theology at St. Mary's College will utilize multi-media techniques to creatively illustrate the Christian's commitment to God and his fellow man vs. his individuality.

Brother Carl will look to the bible, the history of the Church and America for his answers. Is this country really a melting pot or is ethnicity an integral part of "The American Way?", a spokesman says.

Brother Carl's speech will be followed by lunch and a choice of 20 workshops will appeal to all levels of religious education from primary to young adults.

Among the workshop facilitators will be Dr. Michael Cavanagh, Catholic psychologist and Voice columnist, who will talk on "Justice for All," interpersonal justice in contrast to social justice.

Other workshops include "Practical Applications of Kohlberg in the Classroom" with Sister Mary Peter Traviss, OP of GTU; "Team Teaching in Primary Grades" with Sister Suzanne Hockel of San Francisco; "The New Rite of Penance" with Rev. Brian Joyc; "Children's Liturgy" with Father Jack Miffleton; "Catechesis with a Salsa Beat" with Father Antonio Valdivia, and "Creative Use of Gospel Traditions" with Father Ted Crone of Jesuit School of Theology.

Politics, taxes and firefighters

The other day this newspaper suggested that Pleasanton Firefighters approach this whole "merger" question with a deeper sense of what best serves the community. Apparently we should have sent the same message to some of the council bandidates.

While agreeing that a candidate for public office has an obligation to speak out on the major issues of the day, still we wonder just who Frank Brandes and Gene Finch were playing to when they sang their songs of outraged indigation at last Monday's council session. The fact that the room was packed with firemen and their families suggests an answer to the Brandes-Finch pitch.

Which makes us wonder if Mr. Brandes would repeat that "raise my taxes to add more firemen" speech if he were appearing before a large assembly of irate home owners? That is not the message he left with The Times following a recent interview on property taxes and other burdens.

The point we make here is that the city council — no matter how you view them as individuals — was working for the best interest of the entire city and all of its citizens when it moved to formalize an organizational change that has had 13 months to prove its worth.

The Firefighters union does not agree with that change, particularly the appointment of Walter McCloud as director of all safety services. Our view is that Chief McCloud is one of the more talented, dedicated servants on the city payroll, and has proven his worth in a quarter century of public servitude.

All the city council did on Monday was to give Walter McCloud a vote of confidence for the difficult job he took on 13 months ago. We believe the people would join in that affirmation.

Crossing under

If you can't always leap over the obstacles which divide a city, then sometimes you can sneak under.

Livermore took that route in seeking its own east-west passage, a route that would provide vehicular traffic at least one train-free route across that maze of tracks. Next week, we are informed, the "P Street Underpass" will finally open. It is an occasion of city-wide and even Valley-wide importance.

The underpass has been a long struggle, much too long. The litipation still abounds, the claims of special favor will not be stilled. But, come to think of it, when was the last major muni project you encountered that didn't have to survive that same kind of flack?

We are inclined to forget that cities like Livermore — and Pleasanton and Fremont and Berkeley and Wherever — are sliced up like so much apple pie with rail lines that criss-cross our territory with reckless abandon. Congress was most generous to those railroad builders, way back when America's cities are still paying for that generosity.

About all we can do now is find a way to reduce the multitude of grade crossings, merge the tracks, cut down the hazard. Lots of communities talk about doing just that, Livermore is one of the very few that found a way to act.

Once the people are able to forget that long, long disruption, and the maligned businesses are somehow able to adjust to the new traffic flow, Livermore will suddenly become aware of a major municipal triumph — a pair of streets that take you from here to there, without having to fight another of those blessed trains.

Perhaps what Livermore hath wrought, including even the lesson of their miscalculations, will serve as a model for other Valley efforts to put the railroad — or even the freeway — in its place.

So to the Livermore city council members who persisted, to the muni staff which persevered, and to the public which has been all patient, we say "Congratulations!"

May fortune smile on you, as you go through the underpasses of life.

One good sign

Just when we are being advised that the economy, the nation and even the world are in one great slump, along comes this bright note: Christmas tree sales in December of 1975 were at an all-time high.

Not only that, but the big jump came in the "choose and cut" tree lots, where families move in and fell their own tree, just like those bygone days.

What does it all prove? Well, it suggests that Americans are rekindling their faith in Christmas Scrooges might add that "we have little else to believe in," but that's another story.

For now, we are content to report that Christmas '75 was one of the best ever, at least on the commercial side. If only there could be a report indicating that Americans prayed more, and shared more in this Christmas past, we might all then all bolster our faith in the future.

Letters to the Times

Zany vaudeville

Editor, The Times:

You have been most gracious with the amount of publicity and your full cooperation with the up and coming program to benefit the Granada High School Music Dept. called "A Zany Vaudeville Night." The program will be held at the Barn in Livermore on Saturday Jan. 31 at 8 p.m. Thank you so very much for your help.

I would like to ask those hundreds of people who will be attending to please try to buy their tickets in advance. Seating is limited in the Barn and we're trying to have an idea of how many to expect for the free coffee and brownies. You may purchase them from Galaxy Records (formerly Odyssey) on First Street, Livermore or at the Livermore Chamber of Commerce or from anyone in the Granada High Music Department.

Renee Smith
Chairman:

Cal Hi coverage

Editor, The Times:

I'm very concerned . . that girls sports are not covered in . . your paper. You have given some, although not much, coverage of boys activities. People have informed our school, from your paper, saying someone from your sport department would be present at a game, and for some reason or another they don't show up.

Is there some reason why Cal High isn't covered the same way Pleasanton and Livermore sports activities are? We're a new school and we need all the support we can get. It is sad that being a local paper with 5 delivery days you are unable to give us the support and coverage we need.

Is there any way that our school, and your sports writer could get together and work something out . . . ?

Palmistry defended

Editor, The Times:

Re: "Legal Hokum and Palmistry" editorial published in The Times January 23.

I find it unbelievable that a newspaper that believes and practices freedom of the press would refer to "free Speach" as Law School sleight of hand.

Perhaps The Times believes that there are several definitions each suitable to the various social economic classes and the general circumstances of a given situation. Which definition do you use to justify your editorial pages. Perhaps The Times doesn't subscribe to the free speach doctrine at all. If this is the case The Times should at least publish how much they charge for news space along with a list of the names of recent purchasers.

Happy teacher

Editor, The Times:

(Re: Pat Kennedy's report on "Volunteer teacher bids fond farewell to foreign friends" in January 25 Times.)

I was very happy with the article, and I'm sure others will be, too — especially the students because you gave them credit for being the really fine persons they are. And they will get a thrill seeing their names in print.

I liked the enthusiasm and appreciation that permeated the story, and your colorful words lent interest and meaning. It is truly a piece of professional journalism.

In closing, I wish for you, Pat, continued success in your writing career, and may you find complete fulfillment and happiness!

Trucks tailgating

Editor, The Times:

The front page of the January 18, Valley Times reports two traffic accidents that took the lives of local residents. It may be just a coincidence that in both cases, although other vehicles were involved, the victims cars were rear ended by big trucks.

To travel the freeways at speed limits, it is usually necessary to travel in the outside lane and the trucks come up very quickly behind you and will "tail gate" until they have an opportunity to pass. In case of an emergency stop, the trucks couldn't possibly stop in time. I think it is a frightening experience that happens much too often.

Team effort

Editor, The Times:

Connie Roney and I would like to thank all those who supported our efforts to obtain a crossing guard at the intersection of Black Ave. and Harvest Rd. Because of their support our bid was successful. The members of the City Council listened to our presentation and responded to a genuine need with a unanimous affirmative vote.

We particularly wish to thank Tony Huff, Principal of Walnut Grove School, the Executive Board of the Walnut Grove P.T.A., Dr. Abbanat, and Tom Zach, President of the Amador Valley Teachers Association.

The Pleasanton Times deserves a great deal of credit in bringing this entire matter to the attention of the public. It was Ron McNicoll's investigative reporting which gave the community the information necessary to launch a concentrated effort to obtain a safe crossing for our children.

Pleasanton

round the town

To those of you who follow the bewildering exploits of one Patty Hearst, it might help to know that she is not the first of her lineage to gain such lineage.It would appear there has always been a Hearst in our headlines.

It began, some believe, with Senator George Hearst. It was George's engineering genius that launched the family fortune, turning Nevada's silver into California gold, so to speak.

George was also a wanderer, a philanderer even. The "good woman he left behind" was of course our own beloved Phoebe Apperson Hearst, founder of the PTA and patron of the arts, interests which she pursued from her Hacienda in the hills just south of Pleasanton.

Phoebe and George begat William Randolph, before they went their separate ways. Willie in turn begat George, Bill, John, David and Randolph. Just what part Marion Davies may have played in all this begating is another matter, and one which Maid Marion touches ever so delicately in her memoires — "The Times We Had — Life with William Randolph Hearst."

What we cannot doubt is that Marion and Willie did indeed have quite a time for themselves, embracing some 44 years, 26 newspapers, a score of films and more millions than a bunch of latter-day receivers could ever track down.

Marion's recollections provide us with much of the froth but very little of the yeast in this great brew. Fortunately, Pamela Pfau and Kenneth Marx, in providing us with Marion's tape-recorded ramblings, give us also a few footnotes of fact which help today's reader comprehend something of the Hearst mystique.

They also provide us with some really great photography, including shots of Hearst looking like an overstuffed owl, with a a hangover.

W.R. (as all of his faithful minions knew him) was either literary giant, tireless tycoon, addled playboy or the great egomaniac of all time. Depending on which author you read.

Marion Davies seems to suggest we accept W.R. for a little of each, while adding her own life-long reverence for "that sweet man."

I suspect it was because Marion was able to perceive this "sweetness" where all others failed, that Ms. Davies was able to enjoy so much of W.R.'s generosity, throughout the last third of his 88 years on this earth.

They were a team to remember, and that's for sure. By her own admission "never an actress" and much less a star, Marion Davies still managed to induce Hollywood's hard-nosed producers to issue 20 "major" films with her in the title role. In sum, those films represented an investment of just over $10 million, and a net loss of almost $1 million. Sizeable amounts in that low-tax era.

Willie's record was almost that good ... spending millions on a dozen castles in two continents, and losing his shirt on perhaps all but one ... "San Simeon" which the State of California in its wisdom acquired just-in-the-nick, and which today serves as a reminder to all taxpaying-Americans of the grandeur and the folly that once were, but that the IRS will permit no more.

To be totally candid, Maid Marion's memoires read like the revelations of one more dumb blonde who clung to Hollywood like a moth clings to flame. Hearst's part of that story is just about as tragic, if on a different burner.

But put them all together and you have a pretty good idea of how things were, in that time betwixt World Wars I and II, when people of obscene wealth were oblivious to the masses who — for some unknown reason — still revered them, and still today will pay good money for the privilege of touring their gawdy mansions, or to read their tragically funny lives.

The Bobbs-Merrill Company, Inc. published this one, and it sells for $12 50. It may be an awfully expensive way for you to find out what makes Patty Hearst tick.

Dinosaur '76

Editor, The Times:

I get the feeling that ego trips, such as Kissinger, are the only human things your office thinks about. Well, I am no Pet Rock. I need food, shelter and clothing on a day-to-day basis if I am to survive, which is all important to me.

If the computers in Chase Manhatten Bank balance to the satisfaction of Mr. Burns interests me not a whit. The silliness of a 'balanced' budget is as antiquated as hatching a dinosaur egg in 1976. Financially, we did not Survive the 'Great Depression.' We printed the money to finance World War II, the Marshall plan, the Korean Action, the Viet-Nam Action, the trip to the Moon, the Atom Bomb .....

Breathe it softly, Politician, beware offending that delicate, fragile caress: the 'working' voter! Let them have their dignity. It is really all they do have. They do not love even themselves enough to demand a clean environment to live in. It is easier to sell them 'democracy' for an elusive 'those' everthere. (I protest my unemployed status!)

The unspoken idea that humans will hibernate or be in a state of suspended animation, requiring no food, not shelter until some figures in a computer somehow arrange themselves differently, makes as much sense as having a national contest for the naming of the hatching baby dinosaur of 1976.

Sound and Fury

Walt Hecox

Dick Duste, the man who has brought Livermore its third air commuter system, is as patient as he is determined.

More than five years ago he decided to expand his rapidly growing Fixed Base operation in to the air commuter business but waited a full three years to enter the business.

His reasons were two fold. The first was that he could not find exactly the airplane he thought would provide the type of service he believed was needed for a small, air commuter line. The second reason he hesitated involved timing. He decided that 1970 was not the right time to start any business, particularly not one which involved carrying businessmen on short air hops from one medium sized city to another.

Duste was nothing if not thorough. He watched one small air commute line which seemed to have a golden opportunity slowly advance to the rear and bankruptcy.

Duste devoted a lot of time to finding out why the airline failed. On the surface the line looked great. The airplane it used was a 19 passenger turbine job which looked like a mini airliner, the crews were in uniform and all the facilities, personnel and systems were of the highest quality at the outset.

Part of the trouble, Duste discovered, was the airplane. Forced by the nature of short commute runs to operate at low speeds, the turbine engine was not efficient and drank fuel with all the thirst of a member of Alcoholics Anonymous falling off the wagon.

The airplane was also just big enough to demand a co-pilot, which meant one man at the controls for every seven passengers if all of the seats were full.

The airline operated at a separate facility at San Francisco far from the regular flow of passengers from the major airlines, a significant negative factor in Duste's eyes.

As the line began a downward financial spiral, planes were cannabalized for parts, thus grounding part of the fleet. Organizational difficulties set in.

The combination of all this eventually led to bankruptcy.

Having found the flaws which went with failure, Duste set out to correct them.

The first thing to do was wait for the right time. The second, to find the right airplane.

Duste did not think that plane existed back in 1970 when he decided to enter the airline field.

He wanted a craft which could operate at a 90 to 50 per cent load factor and break even.

When, in 1973, Piper came out with the Chieftan, a nine passenger craft which would operate at a fraction of the cost of a turbine, Duste decided to make his move.

Getting started was not easy. A lot of competition appeared and some opposition from major commute lines.

Two years of public hearings before the State Public Utilities Commission were needed before Duste secured his franchise.

He had to convince the PUC he needed to start with a nine city route which will eventually expand to 16 municipalities, because anything less was economically unfeasible.

It involved what he called critical mass. Duste is convinced it costs as much to install a reservations system for a one plane line as a for five.

He pointed out that a line could not operate with one plane because it had to stop for maintenance from time to time and when that happened a one plane line would be dead.

The same was true with with two airplanes, where work on one of the craft would knock out half the line.

Duste convinced the PUC the only practical size for a small airline started with four or five planes. At that rate 20 per cent of the fleet could be out of service with 80 per cent in the air.

Fuel also was a factor in Duste's decision to move into the business.

He pointed out that major lines would no longer be able to waste hundreds of gallons of gas on "prestige" short runs.

At the same time private automobile transportation was less practical at 55 miles an hour and high fuel costs.

"I can take nine people to Tahoe on 15 gallons of gas," he said. "Show me an automobile which can do that in anyway near the time."

With that in mind he opened his airline last fall. Only time will tell whether he is right.

Opening lead—Q ♦

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The game was board-a-match team of four and both West's opened with three diamonds. At one table East elected to pass and it was up to South to do something. He looked at what appeared to be eight sure tricks and tried three notrump. Everyone passed and after West opened the queen of diamonds South ran off 12 tricks.

Everyone laughed when they noted that a spade lead, diamond return, second spade, second diamond, etc. would have given the defenders a grand slam.

North and South were so happy that they overlooked the fact that they could have made a suit slam.

This wasn't overlooked at the other table. East bid three spades, South four spades and eventually South wound up at six clubs. He needed to exercise a little care to bring it home. He wasn't happy with the result since six hearts would make even easier, but he had a winner while his lucky opponent at the other table had a loser.

Ask the Jacobys

An Iowa reader wants to know if you should open a forcing two bid with:

♠ A K x x ♥ A K x ♦ K x ♣ A K Q x.

The answer is that in standard American you should open three notrump. You have 26 high-card points and want the lead to come up to your hand if notrump is going to be the final contract.

TOC-NCS SNAFU

Mike Zampa

Say good-bye to the Tournament of Champions, that numbing three days of basketball greatness where teenage boys weave the mystic patterns of our dreams.

If you follow high school basketball strictly through the EBAL, the TOC is lost forever. It will still be played every March in the Oakland Coliseum Arena. But most Bay Area high schools won't participate.

It has been rendered inoperative for kids, by adults. Two teams will settle the tournament championship on the court, but the outcome was actually determined months ago with some back room politics.

The California Interscholastic Federation's North Coast Section voted to boycott the tournament. It wants league champions within its jurisdiction to play at a sectional tournament instead. It doesn't want to dim the lustre of that event by also permitting member schools berths in the TOC.

"It's another case of grown-ups' politics deciding what's best for kids," complains one coach, who says the youngsters relish a TOC opportunity "It happens all the time with bureauacracies like this."

The EBAL, of course, resides within North Coast's bailiwick. Therefore, its champion will be denied a trip to the Tournament of Champions for the first time. The titleists won't be shut out completely. The North Coast tournament should be good, and in fact could feature most of the East Bay's top ranked basketball teams.

But the section tournament is just a year old, while the TOC enters its 30th season. And finals for the North Coast championship will be held at Cal State University in Hayward, a far cry from the Colisum Arena.

It's not easy to buck tradition and status of such magnitude. But the producers of the North Coast tournament are trying. Some of them, anyway.

There still exists within the NCS, support for the Tournament of Champions. It comes from coaches and principals at schools traditionally tied to the venerable classic.

TOC opponents are the ones who never competed, because of obligations to other post-season events, or inability to win a TOC berth. These are the ones who object to North Coast's involvement with the tournament. At least that's the view of coaches who wish they could go back to the Coliseum for those three exhilirating days.

Some claim the boycott is an attempt to bury TOC in blotches of red ink. With five Bay Area teams barred from competing, the tournament has lost its basis of fan support. More teams will be coming from great distances, and bringing fewer paying followers.

If the tournament ever goes bankrupt it will forfeit its contract with Oakland Coliseum. Then the North Coast could shift its own tournament into the 13,000 seat Arena.

Angry coaches and athletic directors charge that NCS is attempting to subvert the Tournament of Champions in this manner.

But the North Coatt Section says its motives are entirely different.

WCS delegates claim they'll return to the TOC as soon as alleged inequities are cleared up. Their objection is with the Oakland and San Francisco Sections of the California Interscholastic Federation. Each section is composed of less than nine schools, and each encompasses but one athletic league.

NCS, on the other hand, takes in more than 70 high schools.

Regardless of the numbers disparity, each section gets one berth in the Tournament of Champions. In terms of competition, and in dollar revenue realized by each section, there is a tremendous imbalance, the NCS charges.

If the situation is rectified, the North Coast might return to the tournament. By boycotting, it hopes to bring about the change.

"But you don't change something good by killing it," pouts one athletic director who's team won't be going back to the Tournament of Champions this year.

Nevertheless the decision is irreversible. An 11th hour reprieve for North Coast basketball teams was hoped for two weeks back when the section held its quarterly meeting. TOC opponents didn't budge, however.

The Tournament of Champions will emerge with a new format this season, with five sectional champions competing alongside three at large teams. Ideally, TOC directors wanted every section in Northern California represented. The tournament, it was hoped, would be a precursor to a statewide championship.

"That's what most of us have been working for," says one coach.

Granada pins Gaels

Dublin's Kevin Dugan and Steve Jaeger of Granada fought to a 7-7 draw last night in their much-heralded battle in Dublin, but the Matadors crushed the Gaels anyway, 45-14 to cinch a tie for the EBAL championship.

Dugan started out the match with a two-point takedown at 21 seconds of the first period but Jaeger fought back with an escape and a takedown to take a 3-2 lead.

Jaeger increased his lead to 6-2 in the second period and was well on his way to breaking Dugan's season-long winning streak. In the last 20 seconds of the second period Jaeger was in a good position to pin Dugan but failed to capitalize on the situation as Dugan held out for the rest of the period. Apparently Jaeger suffered a ankle injury at the end of that period as the Granada trainers treated his ankle between the periods. Dugan took advantage of the apparent injury by escaping Jaeger's hold at the begining of the third period to make the score 6-3. After a stalling call against Jaeger Dugan scored a takedown at 1:38 of the last period to tie the match.

AMADOR CAGE COACH SEEKS CROWN
Skip Mohatt leads unbeaten Dons

Erratic Mats face Dublin

It may be time for Granada High to determine whether or not it wants to enter the title chase in EBAL basketball.

The Matadors are two-games off the pace of league leader Amador Valley, and are playing close-to-the-vest against some second division clubs.

Tonight they face another opponent mired in the bog, Dublin High. But the Gaels may be the best second-division team in the EBAL, and based on a Tuesday victory over Monte Vista, could give Granada fits.

If the Matadors don't realize their boundless potential this evening in the Dublin gym, they may fall three games out of the lead, and, out of the race.

Receiving good point production from its front line of Scott Campbell, Joe Wujek and Lee Brennan, Granada held off spunky California Tuesday night, 56-52. The three Matador big men totalled 34 points.

Dublin, meanwhile, was sparked by the offense of guards Kory Porter and Ed LaPerle, and stung Monte Vista in overtime, 71-63.

LaPerle scored 20 points and sparked Dublin's 15-point overtime explosion. Porter scored a dozen before fouling out in the fourth quarter. He displayed an accurate outside touch from the floor before departing.

It was the best point output this season from Dublin's back court.

Meanwhile, Cliff Johnson and Kevin Huska provided muscle on the backboards, a must tonight against taller Granada.

A victory for Granada is imperative, because Amador will probably remain undefeated in the EBAL tonight by playing winless Foothill on the road.

Livermore, one game off the Dons' pace, meets California tonight at home.

In the other contest, Monte Vista is at San Ramon.

McKay likes Olympics

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Jim McKay, remembering how Olga Korbut stole the show in Munich in 1972, says he is looking forward to meeting the athletes who will become heroes in this Olympic year.

"That's the most fascinating thing about the Olympics," the ABC sports commentator said during the recent Bing Crosby National Pro-Am golf tournament, his last stop before Innsbruck, Austria, and the start of the Winter Games.

"Nobody in the world had heard of Olga Korbut before Munich.

Liberty gridder files suit

MARTINEZ — A 17 - year - old Brentwood student is suing Liberty Union High School District, claiming he was "the victim of punishment" during football practice.

In a suit filed in Superior Court by Kenneth Gaylor Jr., son of Kenneth R. and Shirley Gaylor, Route 1, Brentwood, Gaylor claims he was subjected to a football drill termed "bull in the ring," Oct. 7 during practice.

"Bull in the ring," involves a player being surrounded by his teammates, who are singled out for one-on-one charges.

The suit does not specify how much in damages is being sought, but Gaylor already has unsuccessfully filed a claim with the district for $1 million.

In addition to the school district, other defendants named in the suit include Jack Ferrill, head football coach, Ron Enos, Jerry Lilly, Jerry England and John Rogers, all staff teachers; 10 unnamed trustees, nine unnamed teachers, and 34 unnamed players.

Gaylor does not specify the types of injuries suffered, but claims he has had to have medical care.

AV booters play for title

There are two good inducements for Amador Valley High to wrap up the EBAL soccer championship this afternoon in a match with Foothill.

For starters, the match will be played at Amador, and coach Mike Geib says he'd like to claim the school's third-ever soccer crown in front of the home folks. They came out in startling numbers Tuesday as Amador moved within a whisper of the title by blanking San Ramon, 3-0.

The other reason for clinching today is a match next Tuesday with Livermore. The Cowboys hold the only victory over the Dons this season. It would make for a hair-raising climax to the season, if Amador is required to beat Livermore for the title on the Cowboys' home ground.

The prospect seems unlikely because Amador is an overwhelming choice to defeat Foothill today The Dons may be basically a young soccer team, but the Falcons are down right infantile. As everyone knows, there are no seniors in the school.

Amador has proved, however, that you don't need many. It's best fullback, Steve Englebrick, is a freshman. The leading scorer, Joe Correia, is a sophomore. Brad Boldrini, the All-EBAL candidate at halfback, is a junior.

Which means the Dons will be challenging for another championship next season.

But first, they must beat Foothill today. For a couple of reasons.

In other action, Livermore is at California, Dublin plays at Granada, and San Ramon travels to Monte Vista.

UCLA cage mentor finds winning tough

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gene Bartow knew he'd be on the spot but didn't know how hot a spot when he took over as head coach of the UCLA Bruins this year succeeding the legendary John Wooden.

UCLA has won 10 national collegiate titles in the past 12 years including eight straight climaxed by a triumph over Kentucky the last time out.

Bartow took over a squad with 10 returning lettermen and fans who expected an all-winning record. For any other team, the current 14-3 would be great. For Bartow it has meant apologies.

"We're going to do some evaluating this week that may or may not lead to starting lineup changes," said the coach who has been beleaguered by critics.

"I expected it, but not this much," the new coach declared as the Pacific-8 Conference lead, usually an exclusive haunt of UCLA has become at least a four-team race.

Oregon State heads the list at 4-1, including an upset victory over UCLA and an upset loss to rival Oregon. Washington and Washington State are both at 3-1 along with UCLA.

You can count on a deadlock at the top after this weekend's play with Oregon State, either Washington or Washington State and perhaps UCLA.

Washington Coach Marv Harshman maintains, "Regardless of what the basketball world feels, UCLA is still the team to beat until someone beats them at home. They've got to be the favorite.

"Oregon State is next because of two road wins, but Oregon's victory helps the rest of us."

UCLA boats two of collegiate basketball's finest forwards in Richard Washington and Marques Johnson. The 7-foot Ralph Drollinger at center has been inconsistent and Bartow keeps switching his guards hoping to get some dependable shooting. Missing from the UCLA championship of 1975 is Dave Meyers, the All-American now playing with Milwaukee of the NBA.

Even the courts of law have entered the basketball court of the Pac-8 this season. Oregon State's 6-foot 8 Lonnie Shelton has been as engrossed in legal maneuvering as he has been in playing basketball.

Shelton, who ranks second in Pac-8 shooting percentage with .582 on 131 field goals in 225 attempts, signed a professional contract with the American Basketball Association last June.

He changed his mind, sued to break the contract and returned to Oregon State. His right to continue playing in college was upheld by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The ABA is suing Shelton for damages and the NCAA indicates unhappiness with the eligibility.

In The Associated Press poll, Washington is the highest ranking Pac-8 club at sixth with its 16-1 record. UCLA ranks 12th and Oregon State, 11-5 overall, holds the 16th position.

McTear ready for big meet

NEW YORK (AP) — Houston McTear, the sensational high school sprinter who is unbeaten on this year's indoor track circuit, heads an outstanding field of world record holders and strong Olympic candidates in Friday night's 69th Wanamaker Millrose Games at Madison Square Garden.

The 18-year-old McTear, coholder of the world 100-yard record of 9.0 seconds, is scheduled to face the man with whom he shares the mark, Ivory Crockett, in the Millrose 60-yard dash.

Also in the 60 will be such standouts as Hasely Crawford, the NCAA indoor and outdoor sprint champion; Steve Riddick, holder of the British 100- and 200-meter titles; colorful Dr. Delano Meriwether, the Boston hematologist; Reggie Jones, and Ed Preston.

McTear will be surrounded by some of the most talented athletes in track and field.

Among the other entrants are: indoor record holder Tony Waldrop and three-time Wanamaker winner Marty Liquori in the mile; world record holder Dwight Stones, Pan American Games champion Tom Woods and former world record holder Pat Matzdorf in the high jump; NCAA and Pan Am champion Earl Bell and amateur indoor record holder Dan Ripley in the pole vault; world record holder Guy Drut of France, 1972 Olympic bronze medalist Tom Hill and four6 time Millrose winner Willie Davenport in the 60-yard high hurdles.

Also, world 880-yard and 1,000-meter record holder Rick Wohlhuter and AAU outdoor half-mile champion Mark Enyeart in the 880.

CITY OF PLEASANTON
NOTICE OF INTENT

PROJECT DESIGNATION:
RZ-76-1
January 30, 1976

In accordance with the provisions set forth in Resolution No. 74-133 and as amended in Resolution No. 75-22 (Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures), rezoning application RZ-76-1 has been determined to require a negative declaration.

The proposed rezoning would change the zoning classification of approximately 2.4 acres located between the Valley Plaza commercial complex and the El Rancho Motel on the west side of Santa Rita Road from A (Agricultural) District to C-C (Central Commercial) District.

Rezoning this parcel of land would expand the commercial use along Santa Rita Road to reach the residential type uses on the north. Development of this parcel for central commercial uses (predominately retail sales) would have the typical impacts associated with such new development compared to its present vacant status. Foremost of these impacts would be increased on-site traffic and traffic on adjacent streets plus possibly intrusive buildings adjacent to residential uses. There are no unusual circumstances relating to this site which would affect its development potential and the potential encroachment on adjacent residential areas could be mitigated at the design stage. It is the finding of the Director of Housing and Community Development that this rezoning would not create, to a significant degree, any of the effects enumerated in the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures which indicate that the environment may be harmed.

For more information on this case, contact the Department of Housing and Community Development, 200 Bernal Avenue, Pleasanton, California 94566, telephone 846-3202.

Unless any written appeals of this case are received by this department within ten (10) days of the above date or publication of this notice in the Pleasanton Times, whichever is later, this decision will become effective.

PROJECT DESIGNATION:
Z-75-190
January 30, 1976

In accordance with the provisions set forth in Resolution No. 74-133 and as amended in Resolution No. 75-22 (Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures), rezoning application Z-75-190 has been determined to require a negative declaration.

The project consists of the construction and use of a 38-unit apartment complex on an approximately 2.6 acre site located between the Arroyo del Valle and the Del Valle Parkway (extension) about midway between Hopyard Road and Santa Rita Road. The 38-units would be contained in ten structures, one and two stories in height, dispersed over the approximately 1.7 acres of developable land extending to the creek embankment.

The project site lies within special hazard zones for both seismic and flood hazards. Although the project proposal would place structures immediately adjacent to the embankment top, little likelihood of damage due to slope failure is present if the recommendations of the soil and geologic report are followed. Zone 7 of the ACFC and WCD has stated that the flood risk at this site, although almost entirely within the FIA Special Flood Hazard Area is low due to the presence of the Del Valle Dam. Structures would be located approximately 40 feet from the right-of-way of the Del Valley Parkway, a future major roadway which is expected to generate noise levels in the future great enough to require noise attenuation measures in order to keep noise levels at the recommended levels for residential areas. Until the adjacent Creek's Bend property develops, the approximately 80 residents of the project would utilize the half-street currently in place between the project site and Hopyard Road. Despite landscaping, the units built next to the creek bank would be highly visible from the creek bed, a future park/trail area. Nevertheless, it is the finding of the Director of Housing and Community Development that this project would not create, to a significant degree, any of the effects enumerated in the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures which indicate that the environment may be harmed.

For more information on this case, contact the Department of Housing and Community Development, 200 Bernal Avenue, Pleasanton, California 94566, telephone 846-3202.

January 30, 1976

In accordance with the provisions set forth in Resolution No. 74-133 and as amended in Resolution No. 75-22 (Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures), rezoning application Z-76-4 has been determined to require a negative declaration.

The project consists of the construction and use of a commercial complex on an approximately 2.4 acre site located on the west side of Santa Rita Road between the Valley Plaza commercial complex and the El Rancho Motel. Three retail commercial buildings would be constructed in phases together with off-street parking and landscaping. The three buildings would be one-story structures of 12,500, 10,900, and 11,800 square feet.

The site of this project contains no physical factors which would affect its development. Development would have typical impacts associated with the change from agricultural use to commercial use. Construction stage noise could affect adjacent residential type uses but upon completion the buildings would shield adjacent uses from traffic noises emanating from the site. Two-way access would be adequate from the major thoroughfare of Santa Rita Road and possibly from the neighboring Valley Plaza Center. The one-story height and setback from future residential land, together with a masonry fence and tree screens should prevent the commercial center from being intrusive on the residential areas. It is the finding of the Director of Housing and Community Development that this project would not create, to a significant degree, any of the effects enumerated in the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures which indicate that the environment may be harmed.

In accordance with the provisions set forth in Resolution No. 74-133 and as amended in Resolution No. 75-22 (Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures), zoning application Z-76-15, an application to construct a 48-unit apartment complex, has been determined to require a negative declaration.

The project consists of the construction of a 48-unit apartment complex on an approximately 1.9 acre site located between and behind 4089 and 4067 Vineyard Avenue. The complex would consist of seven one and two story structures together with off-street parking and recreation areas.

It is the finding of the Director of Housing and Community Development that this project would not create, to a significant degree, any of the effects enumerated in the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures which indicate that the environment may be harmed. The use to which this 1.9 acre site would be put is consistent with the Pleasanton General Plan. Traffic generated by this project would utilize the major arterials of Vineyard Avenue and First Street. Surrounding properties are largely multiple residential uses and church property. The proposed structures are set back from the Arroyo del Valle channel and should not be obtrusive.

For more information on this case, contact the Department of Housing and Community Development, 200 Bernal Avenue, Pleasanton, CA 94566, Telephone 846-3202.

PROJECT DESIGNATION:
Z-76-10, UP-76-1
January 30, 1976

In accordance with the provisions set forth in Resolution No. 74-133 and as amended in Resolution No. 75-22 (Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures), rezoning application Z-76-10 and conditional use permit application UP-76-1, an application to construct and operate a church, has been determined to require a negative declaration.

The project consists of the immediate construction and use of a 2,560 square foot church building on an approximately 4.05 acre site located on the southwest corner of Hopyard Road and Valley Trails Drive (south). Parking access would be off Valley Trails Drive. Future development on the site may include other church related facilities including a 14,000 square foot sanctuary, a 4,750 square foot classroom addition, and a missionary residence.

The proposed project is located within a designated flood hazard area. Prior to development, however, measures would be taken to remove the site from the nazard area by a means found satisfactory by the City. Traffic to the church property would use only that portion of Valley Trails Drive adjacent to the site; access to and from Hopyard Road exists, traffic signals both north and south of the intersection introduce gaps in the traffic flow, and peak church traffic is not anticipated to occur at times when traffic on Hopyard Road is heavy. Access to the property from Valley Trails Drive should be sufficiently removed from the Hopyard - Valley Trails intersection to avoid traffic confusion and interference. It is the finding of the Director of Housing and Community Development that this project would not create, to a significant degree, any of the effects enumerated in the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures which indicate that the environment may be harmed.

For more information on this case, contact the Department of Housing and Community Development, 200 Bernal Avenue, Pleasanton, California 94566, telephone 846-3202.

Unless any written appeals of this case are received by this department within ten (10) days of the above date or publication of this notice in the Pleasanton Times, whichever is later, this decision will become effective.

Inspectors conduct preoperational tests of the fuel-handling device at the Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant, one of three such facilities in California. The Nuclear Safeguards Initiative, if approved by the voters on June 8, would phase out nuclear power plants in California unless strict conditions are met.

Nuclear Initiative warfare looms

Californians are beginning to take sides on the Nuclear Safeguards Initiative, and a hard-fought battle is in the offing.

The Initiative will appear on the June 8 ballot. If approved by the electorate it will ban nuclear plants in California unless thefollowing conditions are met:

●Safety systems are proven effective within five years through actual test.

●Plans are developed within five years for permanent and safe storage of radioactive wastes.

●Provision is made for full compensation, beyond the current $560 million limit, within one year in case of major accident.

●Evacuation plans for areas surrounding nuclear plants are published publically and updated annually.

Proponents of the Initiative say it will protect the population from the disasters of nuclear accident. They note that atomic plants produce deadly radioactive wastes which cannot now be safely stored.

They argue it would be morally wrong to obligate ourselves to any more nuclear power until the serious safety problems are answered.

They assert there are energy alternatives to nuclear power, and that there is a vast source of energy yet to be realized in conservation.

Opponents of the Initiative say it will be the death knell for the nuclear power industry in California.

Sen. John Tunney is on record as opposing the Initiative.

"My problem with the Initiative is that its effect would be to eliminate nuclear power," said Tunney. "While I think we need to strengthen current safeguards, I also happent to think we need atomic power."

Dr. Iris Borg, a geologist at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory interested in energy problems, also opposes the Initiative.

Dr. Borg said the measure would "destroy the nuclear industry in California" by setting conditions which cannot be met.

She said disposal and storage of the radioactive wastes is a factor which can be overcome, but not in the time scale demanded by the Initiative.

Atomic energy, Dr. Borg said, "is the only thing we have now which can solve in the near term the short-fall loss of natural resources."

Coal and oil, she noted, are the only other means available to generate electricity. The world's supply of oil will be depleted by 1995, Dr. Borg said, and coal has dire environmental consequences.

Supporters of the Initiative argue solar power and geothermal power can take the place of dwindling fossil fuels. But the Energy Research and Development Agency predicts solar energy will only account for about 7 per cent of national demand by the year 2000. And Dr. Borg noed an effective means of getting electricity out of the sun remains to be developed.

Dr. Borg said the demand for electriciy is increasing at about 7 per cent a year. Even with price-induced or legislated conservation she said growth in population and industrial use as natural gas decreases will continue to drive up America's demand for electricity.

"I have reservations about the long-term use of atomic power," said Dr. Borg. "There are risks and disadvantages, and it is not the world's answer to energy needs in the long term."

—by Karen Boyle

Sandia to develop solar powered plant

LIVERMORE — Sandia/Livermore's Energy Technology Division has launched a program to develop a solar-powered pilot plant which uses a central receiver.

The project is funded by the Energy Research and Development Administration.

The primary purpose of the project is to test the operational flexibility and feasibility of the system. "No one has ever constructed and run a solar-powered operation of any appreciable size," said Alan Skinrood, supervisor of Sandia's Solar Energy Technology Division.

"This one will be about 40 times larger than the current record-holder and about eight times larger than the five-megawatt solar thermal test facility to be constructed at Sandia Laboratories in Albuquerque," said Skinrood.

The 10-megawatt electric pilot plant would be large enough to supply the electrical needs of a town of roughly 10,000 people.

Fueled by the sun's heat, the plant will include fields of solar tracking mirrors, each one redirecting solar radiation received by the earth to a boiler at the top of a tower.

The high temperature (-500 degrees centigrade) energy will power a conventional steam turbine or be stored for later use.

The energy can be stored as sensible heat, where the storage material changes temperature, or as latent heat, where materials change phase.

By reversing the process the energy can be released to produce steam.

The goal is to have as many hours of heat storage as practical within economic constraints.

The project has a five-year target date. The pilot plant should be operational by June 1980.

The pilot plant site will be selected this fall.

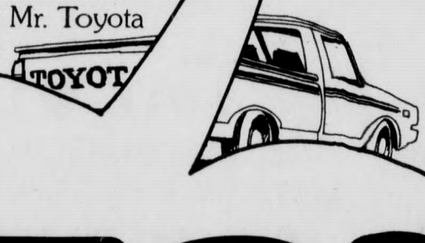
Mr. Toyota Man: YES?

Is it true that this year you have more cars to pick from than ever before?
You'll find a lot more to pick from this year on Mr. Toyota Man's lot. For '76, he's ordered more Corollas, more Coronas, more Celicas, to give you a bigger choice of body styles, colors, and options.
This year's Toyotas are built stronger to last longer, and engineered to give even better gas mileage than last year's. And since Mr. Toyota Man has more cars to sell, he's more anxious to trade. It's the year of the big "yes."


YES!

See "Mr. Toyota Man" (your local Toyota Dealer).
